The Charleston (8. C.) New (Dem.) devotes a long double-leaded article to the discussion of the northern newspapers about the solid South. It looks on the threat of a united North to oppose the South as "a cry more alarming than the haranges of Thad, Stevens and Oliver P. Morton." It denies that the South wants the government to pay the rebel debt, and says: "it is known and understood in the South and any injury done to public credit in the country is more interested than the South. The sale of the Mingo Iron Works comes off to-day at the Court House in Steubenville. Among the many rumors that have been affort in regard to the probable disposition of the property, is one to the effect that Alex Swift, of Coyington, Ky., will probably be the purchaser, and also that if he succeeds in buying it he will remove his Iron and Steel Works at Covington to Mingo. This last suggestion does not look very probable. It is understood that a condicate in this immediate vicinity have

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

Syndicate in this immediate vicinity have had in view the purchase of the property provided it should go low enough. As to what would be low for such a property at time like this is something that nobody can find out. It is quite possible that the first mortgage bond holders will bid it up to the extent of their claim.

As the Legislatures are assembling, the question of employing the Moffett bell-punch as a means of revenue comes up again for discussion. As bill has already been introduced into the Georgia body for its adoption in that State, as a support of the public school system. In St. Louis, also, the subject is being agitated, bbt a committee of the city government reports against such a tax. It would not be derived from luxuries, they claim, since alcoholic liquors, and especially beer, have come to be an important element in the diet of many families. The punch has now been in successful use for 14 months in Virginia, and it has raised a revenue of $52,736 in Richmond alone during that
